

Melin & Carlsson Hydraulic AB acquires Tubex AB

28 January 2021, Melin & Carlsson has acquired all shares in the cylinder manufacturer Tubex AB.

The two companies form a new group with a turnover exceeding 17 million EUR. The main focus is the manufacture of hydraulic cylinders at two production units in Tranås.

In addition to this, both pneumatic cylinders and hydraulic cylinders are manufactured at the production unit in Borås.

The new group will together have a broad product range, a broad competence and a well-invested fleet of machines for competitive production of standard cylinders, customized cylinders, telescopic cylinders and pneumatic cylinders.

By taking advantage of each other's specialties as a company and the new groups joint business volumes, we believe we can take great steps forward, with the goal of becoming one of Sweden's leading cylinder suppliers.

Tubex will operate as a subsidiary under Melin & Carlsson with Ola Melin as CEO of the group.

This means that the collaboration and the daily handling for you as a customer will continue just like previously but with access to additional extent of products and resources.

Melin & Carlsson Hydraulic AB is today owned by Draft Företagsinvest AB (75%) together with former main owner and founder Ola Melin (25%).
